"The Bible is indeed the impired to explain it and that teacher is the infallible church."

Father, Miller in answering a queation about the origin of the Paulist fathers, said: "The history of the Paulists and their work is interesting. The priests of the Missionary society of St. Paul the Apostle, which title has been popularized by the people into Paulists, is a congregation of purely American origin. It was founded by Father Issae Hecker, in 1868, in New York city. The first five members were five converts to Catholician. Father Isaac Hecker in 1858, in New York city. The first five members were five converts to Cathonicism. These men were Isaac Hecker, who a short time before his entrance into the church was a member of the Brook Farm community of transcendalists; Clarence Walworth, Francis Baker and Augustine Hewit, the three former being ministers; and George Deshon, graduate and some time instructor at West Point Military academy. After entering the church they became priests and finally founded the Paulist community to specialize in mission work throughout the United States.

"I do all my housework and take care of two grandchildren during the daytime. Then I go down to the Commercial Chemical Company and work from 5 p.m. to 10:30 p.m."

This bit of information appears in a statement given by Mrs. Elia Foster, 1005 Thomas Street, Memphis, and it is significant of willingness and capacity for work, and all the more remarkable when it is known that only a short time ago she was in a poor state of health, able to get but little sleep and that this run-down condition had affected her for a period of two years. She declares the wonderful improvement is due to Pepgen.

Mrs. Foster is a widow, fifty-eight years of age, and her statement follows:

"I was in a run-down condition for two years. I felt fatigued all the time. My appetite was very poor. I was so weak that when I did any hard work, like washing, I would be laid up in bed for a day or two.

"I would be sleepy at night, but when I went to bed I would roll and toss for hours, unable to get to sleep and

Mr. J. E. Kuehn, Richmond Avenue, Describes the Results Secured.

"I feel ten times better than I did before I began taking Pepgen," is the significant statement made by Mr. J. E. Kuehn, of 797 Richmond avenue, in the course of a public testimonial which he has given in recommendation of the medicine that is causing so much comment here and elsewhere.

Mr. Kuchn has lived in Memphis for many years and is especially well known to the older residents. He used to operate a dairy where he now lives. At that time that part of the city was not built up and he had pasturage for 135 cows.

To a wide circle of friends of the days when he was active, his statement will be especially interesting. He says: "I suffered with indigestion, Gas formed in my stomach in such quantity that at times I could hardly get my breath. I would have to sit down and rest until the spells passed off. Nearly everything I ate seemed to sour on my stomach and make me belch. I had se vere attacks of heartburn also.
